'Tantalizing little pieces,' Crary Art Gallery welcomes collage works of Elissa Davis

By STACEY GROSS

"The works are tantalizing little pieces," said Thomas Paquette, a member of the Crary Art Gallery's board of directors. Speaking of the collages that Warren native Elissa Davis will present at the gallery's opening on Saturday, Paquette went on to say that "they are delicate and precisely done. I've been hoping we'd have a chance to see Elissa's collages at the Crary since I first saw them a couple of years ago."

Davis has been carrying her camera with her on hikes since the age of six, and her interest in collage started during sixth grade. Her art teacher that year was teaching students how to make simple designs like yin yangs, said Davis, but she decided to do a soccer ball, even going so far as to collage individual blades of grass for her project.

Davis said that after a trip to Italy during her final year of college, she returned to the technique, recreating photographs of her trip with minute scraps cut from the pages of magazines. Davis said she even took the time to match the shades of the colors in her photographs, intricately recreating each scene. Over the years, Davis said, she's used a wide variety of the places she's visited - including the wild areas of Warren County - in her collages, reproducing them one tiny piece at a time.

Davis said that she really enjoys the intricacy of collaging architecture, but has recently taken on a new subject - that of pets. "I did a collage of a bird recently," said Davis, "and the feathers were a lot of fun to do. I thought, why couldn't I do fur too?" Davis said that her

The Lander United Methodist Church was recently treated to a special day with the help from the Dairy Princesses of Warren County. The team served ice cream to all those in attendance after a great soup luncheon. Pictured here are Madison and Kaitlin Sleeman serving ice cream to Michelle and Owen Walburg and Tonya and Keeley Alcorn. The Dairy Princess team is reminding everyone to make sure you are having your three servings every day of your all-important dairy.
